Ahead of the game

Developer Henry Justin has just six units left at his 211 East 51st Street, a luxury condominium conversion between Second and Third Avenues.

He credits “stylish layouts, custom finishes and convertible design options” for the building’s brisk sales.

“By staying true to a philosophy of sound construction, great design and tremendous attention to detail, 211 East 51st Street has been able to navigate the challenging real estate market with a beautiful building that doubles as a terrific investment,” said Justin.

The remaining one- and two-bedroom residences starting in the low $800,000s. Details include vault-like Wausau casement windows, hardwood floors and Calacatta marble kitchens with Bosch ranges.

Amenities include a 24/7 attended lobby, fitness room, bicycle room, storage rooms and resident’s lounge.
